WSUMC Holds Several Successful Events!

Within the last few weeks, WSUMC and its mission teams have been very busy planning and executing three very successful events.

On April 28th and 29th, Active Faith held a Drive n' Drop for the Richland County Foster Care program. With the help of local news anchor, Dawndy Mercer Plank from WIS, the committee collected hundreds of items for the cause. Diapers, wipes, socks, and so much more were collected from the community as well as WS members.

On April 30th, the Racial Justice Action Team hosted a very successful Columbia SC: 63 Civil Rights Walking Tour in downtown Columbia. Over 35 individuals took part in the hour-long walk from the State House to Boyd Plaza in front of the SC Art Museum on Main Street. The tour was led by the Columbia SC: 63 group based out of the University of South Carolina.

Then, on Saturday, May 6, Active Faith sponsored Stringtime Duo, a fundraiser concert for the people of Ukraine. Over 100 individuals joined us in Christ Chapel for an amazing concert featuring Ukrainian musician Marina Alexandra, and Russian domra player, Angelina Reed. With delightful banter, and very skilled musicianship, the performers delighted the audience with a number of rousing classical guitar pieces during the evening. Along with sponsors, and the money raised during the evening, the team raised over $5,000 for the people of Ukraine. The money will be distributed between Charlotte for Ukraine, and UMCOR.

Getting to Know...The Rev. Alston Lippert

By Fran Zupan

The first time Alston Lippert went on the Walk to Emmaus, a three-day retreat intended to renew and strengthen one's faith, she thought she heard God call her to go into the ministry, but she ignored it.

A couple of years later, in 2013, while leading Companions in Christ, a small group on spiritual formation, Alston heard the call more distinctly and discussed it with her pastor.

When Alston met with the district superintendent to discuss her candidacy for ministry, she started backpedaling on her commitment. She talked about ways she would do ministry without becoming a pastor. And that is what she did at her home church, Northeast UMC. She volunteered with youth and children. She chaired church committees. She taught Sunday school and led small group studies. She visited the sick and the homebound. And more.

The next time Alston went on the Walk to Emmaus — in 2016 — she was on the organizing team. Once again she heard God telling her very clearly, “you need to go into the ministry.” She realized it was three years, almost to the day, since she heard the call the first time.

This time, her reaction was different. She met with the district superintendent and began the process for ordination into the United Methodist Church. She attended a candidate's retreat and enrolled in the Lutheran Theological Southern Seminary.

Alston said she didn't want to wake up in three more years and hear the call again.

“From that point on, the doors swung open,” Alston said. “Every time I might pull back, there would be something that would let me know I was in the right place, doing what God wanted me to do.” That knowing gave her peace and contentment, she said.

Alston has been at Washington Street since 2017. She is the associate pastor for nurture and disciple development.

Alston is a lifelong Methodist who grew up in Union, S.C. She was named Nora Alston after her mother and her grandmother. Over the years, she has known a handful of people named Alston. Half were men, and half were women, she said.

When Alston left Union, she went to the College of Charleston. She planned to major in accounting, but after her first economics course, she changed her major to economics. She loved economics in high school, and she found that economic principles, such as the laws of supply and demand, made sense to her.

Following graduation from college in 1986, she attended the University of South Carolina to pursue a doctorate in economics, which she earned in 1990. She became a teaching assistant and taught summer school beginning in 1987.

Her goal was to teach economics at the college level.

“I had some great teachers who formed me,” Alston said. “I taught off and on for 30 years.”

Alston met her husband at USC.

He was pursuing a doctorate in finance, and they were on the same floor in the business school. They married in 1993 and had two children 18 months apart: Alston Lee and Catherine.

Their separation in 2005 “rocked my world,” Alston said.

She said the divorce, which was final in 2006, was the catalyst for her faith journey, which led to her ministry.

“I had the curse of feeling I was fairly self-sufficient, that I didn't need God,” Alston said.

She signed up for a Disciple Bible study course, and her relationship with the Lord flourished. She went on the Walk to Emmaus.

One of her fellow pilgrims on the walk mentioned a small group Bible study, Companions in Christ, which has helped groups open to God's presence and guidance. Alston gathered a group of 10 people at her church and led the study.

One of Alston's areas of responsibility at Washington Street is disciple development, which is achieved through small group studies.

Another part of her job is staying in touch with the sick and homebound.

“I get to love on people who generally are going through difficult times, and I appreciate God using me in that way,” Alston said.

Both her parents had long illnesses before they died, so Alston knows from experience how important it is to have someone to accompany you through the hard times. Preferably that someone can help you realize that God is with you, she said, adding, “I try to be that person.”

When her former mother-in-law Charlotte was hospitalized last year, and her former husband rushed to her bedside in Cincinnati, Alston called him and offered to pray on the phone. When the family gathered, they asked her to pray with them all, again by phone. When Charlotte died, the siblings said they wanted Alston to do her memorial service.

Charlotte had divorced in the 1970s, during a time when the church tended not to be as accepting of divorce as it is now.

“She was a faithful person, but she didn't have a relationship with the pastor,” Alston said. “Whoever would have done the service would not have known her.”

Alston talked to her several times a year and sent pictures of her children.

“She was a really special woman,” Alston said. “Her life and her faith needed to be celebrated.”

Alston Lee, Alston’s older child, is working on a doctorate in plant biology at the University of Florida. She came out as non-binary about two-and-a-half years ago and uses the pronouns they/them. Catherine is working on a master’s degree in earth and environmental resource management from USC. She and her husband Josh married last June.

Alston is a huge fan of Gamecock women’s basketball. In 2022, she went to the NCAA Final Four in Minneapolis and watched the Gamecock women win the national championship.

She also likes to hike and has hiked the completed parts of the Palmetto Trail with a friend. The two have hiked about 400 miles of the trail which will be 500 miles long when it is completed. It will stretch from Walhalla in the Blue Ridge Mountains to Awendaw on the Intracoastal Waterway.

This week, Alston has been on a six-day, 75-mile pilgrimage through Spain from Tui to the cathedral at Santiago de Compostela, a shrine to St. James, the apostle, who is believed to be buried beneath it. Her journey is the last leg of the Camino Portugués, or the Portuguese Way, which begins in Lisbon.

Although she went alone, Alston has been on a tour with seven other women, whom she had never met. The day after they complete their walk, they are scheduled to attend a Pilgrim Mass at the cathedral.

“For me it’s about time to unplug and leave behind worldly distractions to see what quiet and solitude bring,” Alston said several days before she left for Europe. She said she wanted to see what God had in store for her on the pilgrimage and to figure out how to go deeper in her relationship with God.

Fundraising Begins for 2023 Sing-Along Messiah!

Date set for Dec. 11 at 7:00 pm

Washington Street, one of Columbia’s oldest houses of worship, has been home to the annual Sing-Along Messiah event since its inception in 2002.

This holiday event gives singers, instrumentalists, and music-lovers from across the Midlands and beyond the opportunity to join together and celebrate the season through the singing of Handel’s Messiah. The popularity of the Sing-Along Messiah is ever-increasing. In fact, the 2019 performance filled the sanctuary to its capacity of more than 500!

After a three year hiatus, the date has been set for Dec. 11 at 7:00 pm in the Sanctuary. We are very excited to announce that Dr. Lillian Quackenbush, who has been with the program for many years, will return as director. Sing-Along Messiah will feature an orchestra of talented local musicians.

Community like this must be fostered and Washington Street UMC is elated to be a part of this effort as we are able to keep this event free to the public. However, the ability to put on an interactive concert of this caliber requires financial support. Costs incurred include paying the instrumentalists, soloists, and conductor, advertising, sheet music and administrative/event costs. This very special downtown arts event not only displays the immense talent found in Columbia, but also invites its audience to participate.

We are asking for businesses and individuals alike to make financial contributions to Sing-A-Long Messiah. Your support can help us make this year’s event the best yet. Together, we can continue a tradition that enables people to celebrate the season with this holiday classic.

Please feel free to contact Nicholas Todd Shumate, Director of Music, at nicholas@wsmethodist.org or 803-448-7361 if you have questions or need more information.

You may also contact our church’s Business Administrator, Robbie Douglas, at rdouglas@wsmethodist.org if you wish to support this event. You can give online at www.wsmethodist.org.

org/giving or by using the QR code. Be sure to select Sing-Along Messiah as the designated fund.

Donations are now being accepted!

Five of our young people are working their way through the Confirmation process and will be recognized on Sunday, May 21st during Confirmation Sunday. Each student will have a bucket near the main office for us to support these young people by writing cards or giving small gifts of encouragement.

Please be sure to write a message to them so that they feel the love of their Washington Street family.

As many of you have noted, my family has experienced multiple medical difficulties over the past 2 years including my recent surgery and my sister Debby's most recent hospitalization and passing. The multiple ways so many of you have intentionally reached out to us, especially in these days following Debby's passing, have helped us feel the immeasurable warmth of God's love wrapping around our hearts. Thank you for loving me and my family and expressing your concern in meaningful ways.

*With deep gratitude,
Rev. Becky*

Mission Trip Planned

Washington Street UMC Missions is sponsoring a trip to the US-Mexico border to learn first hand about the complex dynamics of immigration (and secondary issues) and how our Christian faith informs such issues. There will also be several service opportunities to work with immigrants who have just crossed the border. The trip may also include crossing into Reynosa, Mexico, to immerse and serve with a UM missionary.

The trip will be based in McAllen, TX, where our hosts will guide and inform our experience. This short trip, June 18-22, will be an excellent introduction. Approximate cost is $550 and evening meals. Feel free to contact Pato Aravena (Patricio.aravena@gmail.com), Mackin Wall (mackinwall4@gmail.com); or Tom Wall (WallBrodie@aol.com) for more information.

WHERE IS MY CHURCH DIRECTORY?

Did you know you can use the Realm website on a computer/tablet or the Realm app on a smartphone to access the church directory for addresses, phone numbers, email, etc?

If you need help setting up Realm, contact Lynn Shirley at 803-422-3368. Or Jane Peterson (jane@wsmethodist.org), or Robbie Douglas (rdouglas@wsmethodist.org).

SAVE THE DATE! WSUMC's Wear Orange Sunday is June 4!

We wear orange for a future free from gun violence.

This year, we once again unite in our call to end gun violence as we come together for Wear Orange. We honor the communities shattered by gun violence alongside the 120 people who are shot and killed, and hundreds more who are wounded, every day in our country. Together, we call for meaningful action to save lives.

We should not have to live in fear that gunfire can ring out at any moment, whether it's at an elementary school in Uvalde, Texas, while grocery shopping at a supermarket in Buffalo, New York, a party in San Bernardino, or at graduations across the country. We deserve more. Raise awareness by participating in Wear Orange online, in your community, and here at Washington Street!
